SUPPLY CHAIN TRANSPARENCY:

Prénatal does not disclose names and addresses of its suppliers. → It is time for Prénatal to go transparent! A first step should be to comply with the Transparency Pledge, and publish data in a machine-readable format.

see: transparencypledge.org

LIVING WAGE PAID:

This means: Prénatal makes no claim and no public evidence was found that its suppliers are paying a living wage. → Prénatal should respect the right of workers in its supply chain to a living wage and ensure full transparency in order to demonstrate the implementation of a real living wage at factory level.

Prénatal has some commitment to ensure a living wage is paid across its supplier network but this may not meet all criteria.

Prénatal should commit publicly to ensuring a properly defined living wage is paid across its supply chain.

Prénatal has no public plan describing how to improve wages for workers across its supplier network.

Prénatal should commit to a published plan describing how a living wage will be achieved in a reasonable time-frame.

No evidence was found that Prénatal takes steps to safeguard wages when they are in price negotiations with suppliers. This allows suppliers to put profit margins ahead of wage security for workers.

Prénatal should isolate labour from other production costs, so its suppliers do not cut wages in order to negotiate lower prices.

Several benchmarks are available for companies to measure whether wages are sufficient to meet the basic needs of workers and their families.

No evidence was found of public information on gender pay gaps in its supply chain.

However, no evidence was found that the company uses any credible living wage benchmark.

No data about wages currently paid to workers at its suppliers is disclosed.

Prénatal does not publicly report on unionization of workers nor on existing collective bargaining agreements in its supplier factories.
